Benefits We Obtain From The National Guard...

Guest Editorial — The following is the winning essay in the Michigan Week contest sponsored at the Grayling High School. The author of this editorial is Cheryl Smock who was awarded a cash prize by the Michigan National Guard and an individual award from the Kiwanis Ciub of Grayling as well as having her name enscribed on a permanent trophy. She is a sophomore at Grayling High School.

First of all, a great deal of money comes into Gray-ling and to the merchants. There is hardly a day that does by from June until August that one does not see, at the very least, one guard walking down the street at the very least, one guard walking down the street or in a local store.

During the time of each troops stay here, a good many of the men's families accompany them. They live in house trailers or rent cabins and motels, which brings in a great deal of money to the owners of these establishments. Usually the day before a troop leaves the families have to come to town to buy souvenirs and toys for the children. Even men whose families are not here buy things to take home to them.
